Q: Active Directory Role Manager permissions We're currently using role manager to grant permissions on our domain. However, we have noticed a few things that are a bit of a pain and which we would like to do something about. We've noticed that if we enter a user name and a computer name into the "Extend rights to other domain users" part, they don't always work. For example, if a user is a member of the groups "Domain Admins",

"Server Role Users", and "SharePoint Admins", and also, for example, has been granted "Log on as a service" via the Local Security Policy, they are unable to access the sharepoint even if they are a member of these groups (also with a membership in the "IIS_WPG group).

Also, we've noticed that the permissions are inconsistent. For example, sometimes the permissions will be granted to a group and the permissions will be changed to a user, but the permissions won't match up and we'll be in an inconsistent state. I think it may just be a bug in the role manager, but would anyone have any solutions to these problems? A: I've used Active Directory View
